ABOUT THE COVER PHOTO

EDITOR

Local Hangzhou residents converge on famous Westlake by 5:30 am on a Summer morning to jog, share breakfast, participate in Tai Qi, and chat. Along this street, men write Chinese calligraphy on the pavement with water.

By 7:30 am, the busses arrive and swarms of tour groups, primarily mainland Chinese, take over the Westlake parks and islands. Come noon, the heat is unbearable. The local people and their water-characters have evaporated, leaving behind some tourists, occasional mad dogs, and the editor, now disoriented from heat exhaustion on his rented bicycle.

Elderly Hangzhou residents chatting at Westlake around 6 am.
